"Writing Runaways means I get to hang out with the Runaways, 24-7. Think about it. A witch, a dinosaur, a 12 year-old who KO'd the Punisher and Wolverine, the son of Ultron, one of the last surviving Skrulls... what's not to love? I'm having a blast!"

– Terry Moore, Runaways Writer

"It's pretty mind blowing for a relative greenhorn to get the green light to expand the Green Goliath's mythos in such an enormous way. And to tell the tale of the one-and-only Son of Hulk, continuing the epic tale I began in "Planet Hulk" and "World War Hulk" with brutally beautiful art by the legendary Ron Garney? This puny human can't stop grinning."

– Greg Pak, Skaar: Son of Hulk Writer

"This issue will introduce a shocking new face to the readers of Daredevil. For the first time, we'll meet Lady Bullseye, and discover who she is, what her connection is to Bullseye, and what she wants from everyone's favorite guardian of Hell's Kitchen. Brubaker has come up with a remarkable story that's going to change Matt Murdock forever."

– Warren Simons, Daredevil Editor

GUARDIANS OF THE GALAXY™

"Star-Lord now hides behind a mask. Adam Warlock and Drax recently returned to life with all-new bodies and remade minds. Mantis speaks in riddles and hides future visions from her teammates. Oh, and need I mention the telepathic dog and talking raccoon? With this series tying into Secret Invasion for the next few issues, it's not a question of who might be a Skrull, but more of who isn't?"

– Bill Rosemann, Guardians of the Galaxy Editor

"What if Charles Darwin created the Marvel Universe?! Spandex-clad simians, mechanized mandrills, Asgardian orangutans and a monkey mystery to unpeel – Karl Kesel and Ramon Bachs have turned a funny idea into a great story in the Merry Marvel Manner that really serves as the next evolution in where I think super-heroes are going. You guys are going to go...crazy for it." (You thought I was gonna say "go ape," didn't ya?!)"

"The samurai genre has transcended Japan, especially in the comic bookrealm, with foreign creators from Chris Claremont to Frank Miller offering us their interpretations on these noble, sword-wielding warriors of a time long past. Now European creators Jean-Francois Di Giorgio and Frédéric Genêt take this historical archetype and turn it on its ear, creating an intricate and engaging mythology of their own, one that lives up to legacy set by the classics that have come before."

– C.B. Cebulski, Loners Writer

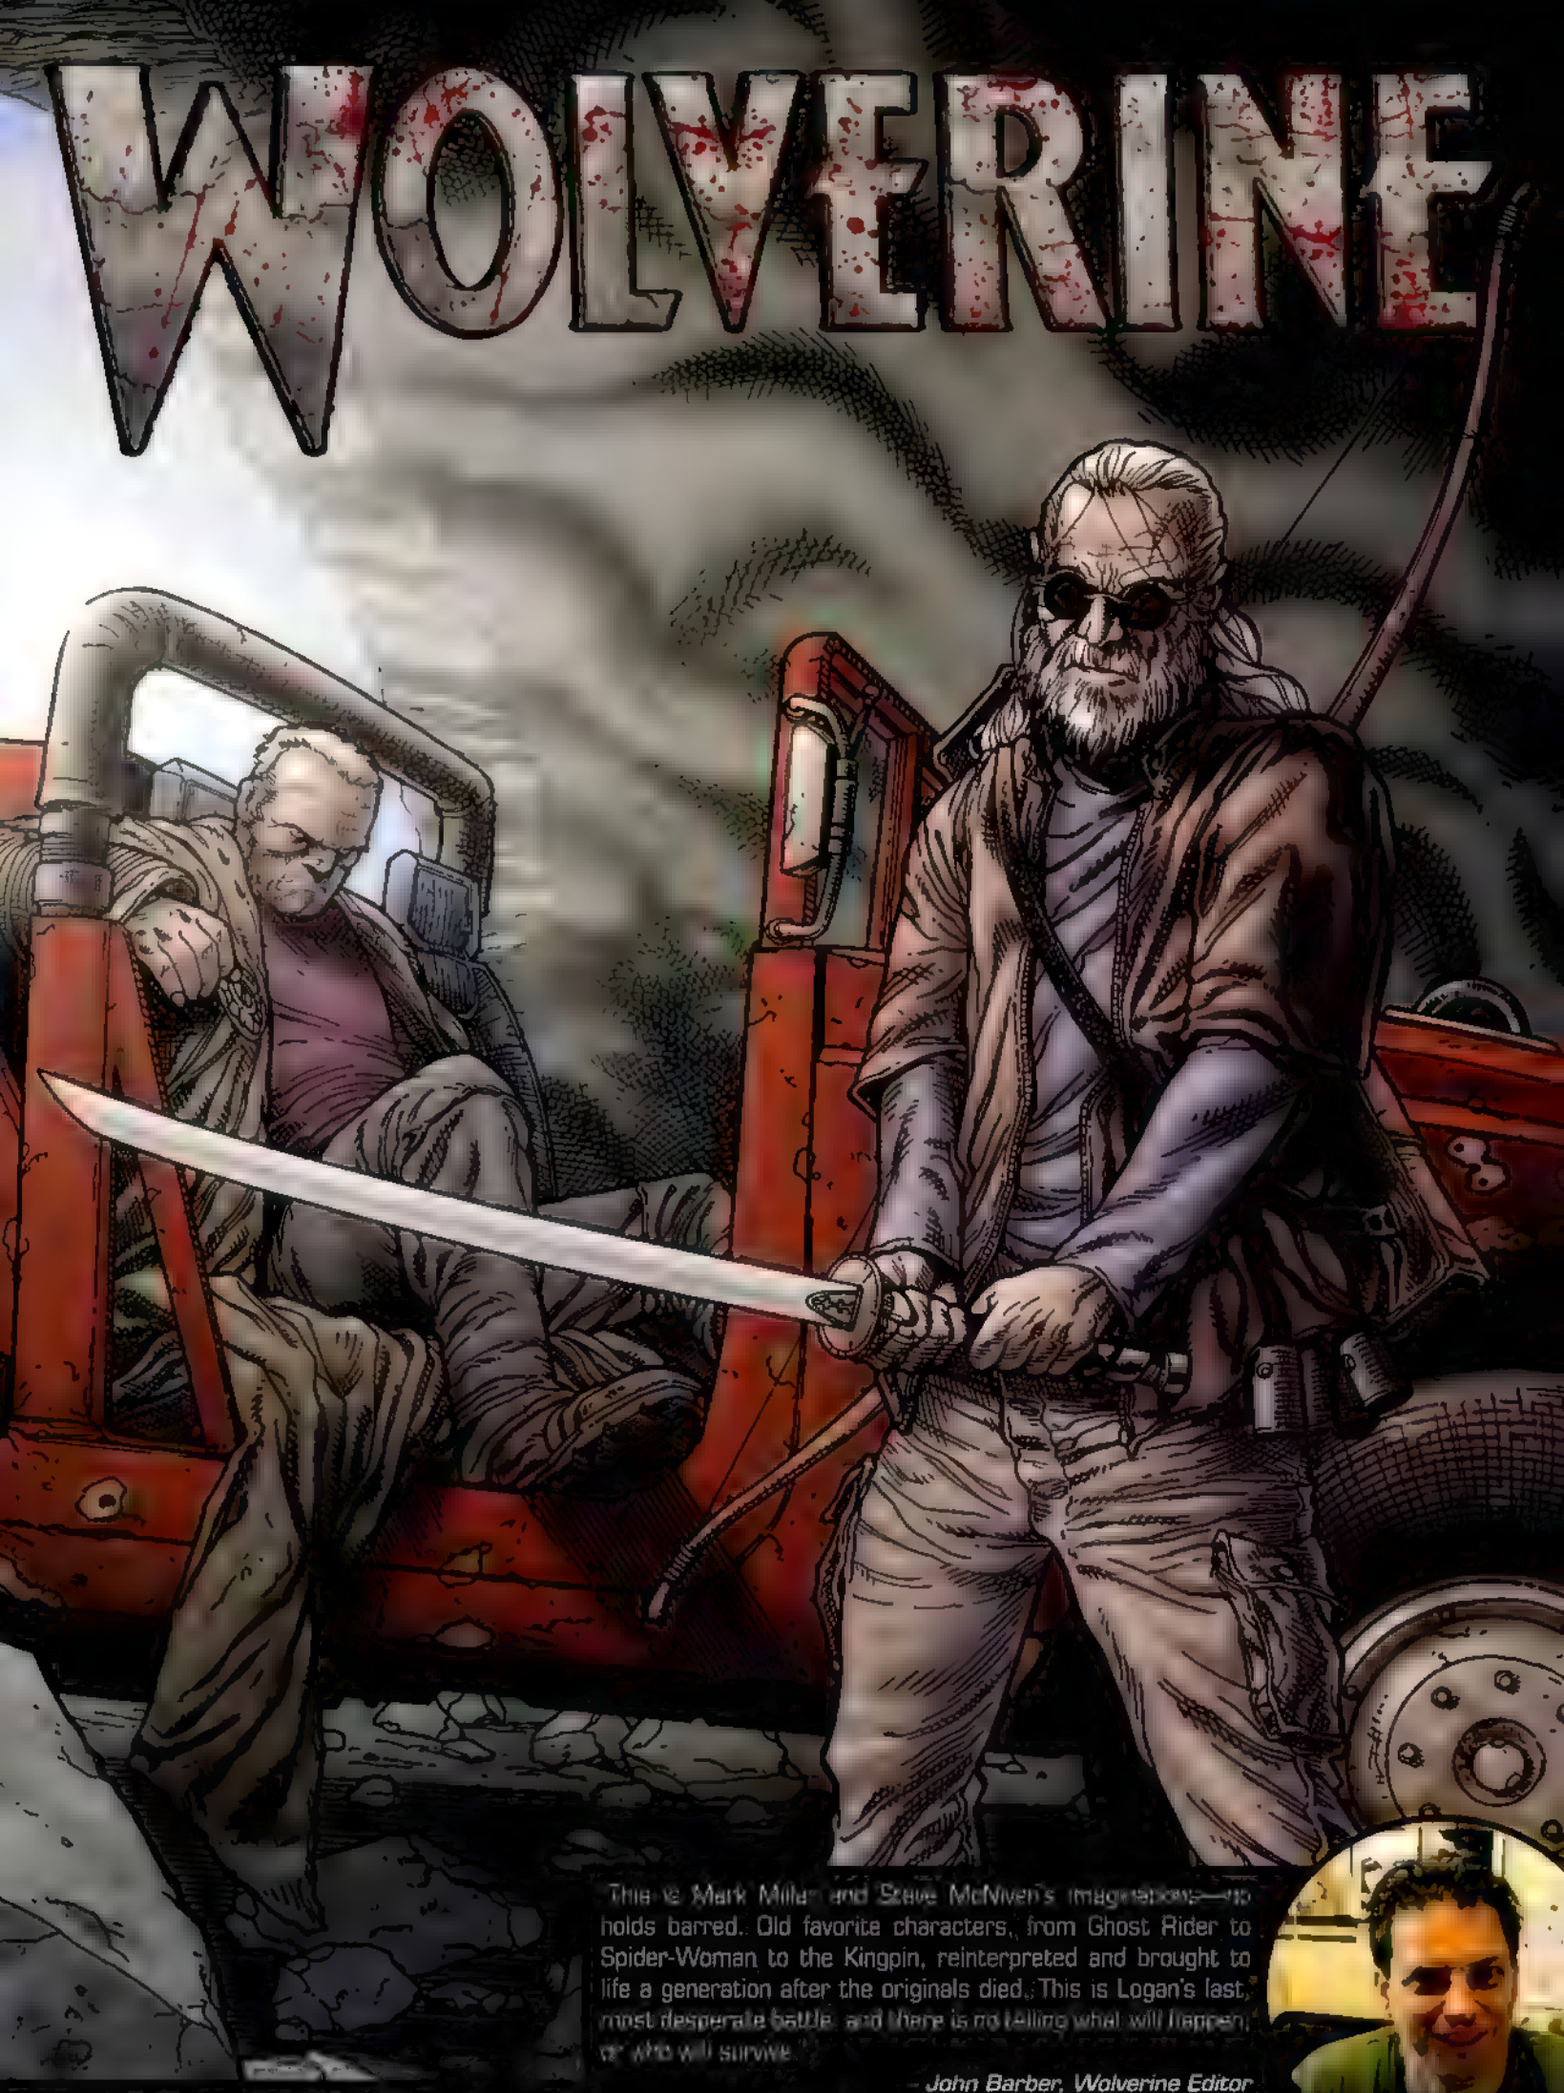
WOLVERINE



This is Mark Millar and Steve McNiven's imagination—no holds barred. Old favorite characters, from Ghost Rider to Spider-Woman to the Kingpin, reinterpreted and brought to life a generation after the originals died. This is Logan's last, most desperate battle, and there is no telling what will happen, or who will survive.

– John Barber, Wolverine Editor

WOLVERINE #68

DEADPOOL
LIEFELD
CAPPROTTI
"We're bringing Deadpool back to center stage—back into the beating heart of the Marvel Universe, where he belongs. You know how, at every family get-together someone has to completely flip out or do something so heinous that it's talked about for years and years afterward? Deadpool is that guy. But with a rocket launcher."
– Daniel Way, Deadpool Writer

X-MEN
MANIFEST DESTINY

"The biggest status quo change in X-Men history hits this July when the X-Men relocate from Westchester to San Francisco. This change of scenery signals not just a change in strategy, but also in philosophy. Cyclops has a vision for the X-Men and will stop at nothing to ensure that his species escapes extinction. The X-Men aren't a family any more. They're an army."

– Nick Lowe, X-Men: Manifest Destiny Editor
